Join us to celebrate the work of the Department of Architecture & Landscape. We share a belief in architecture and landscape as a continuum of cultural thinking and our studios marry exceptional students to leaders working in practice and in the academy, encompassing a diverse range of positions as befits the contemporary context of pluralistic practice.

We also celebrate a number of significant achievements by our teaching staff:

- Professor Andrew Clancy's practice Clancy Moore has won Young Architect of the Year 2018 and is participating in the Venice Biennale 2018;
- Our MArch external examiner Elizabeth Hatz is participating in the Venice Biennale 2018 at the invitation of the Curators Yvonne Farrell and Shelley McNamara;
- MArch tutor Simon Henley's practice Henley Halebrown have won two RIBA London 2018 awards and published a De Aedibus monograph including an essay by MArch tutor Hugh Strange;
- BA Architecture tutor Will Burges's practice 31/44 has won an RIBA London award 2018;
- MArch tutors Matheson Whiteley have won the AJ Small Projects 2018 award;
- Year 3 leader and BA and MArch tutor Alex Gore's practice Pricegore has been shortlisted in a design contest for a Summer Pavilion at Dulwich Picture Gallery;
- Our BA Architecture external examiner Miriam Delaney is co-curating the Irish Pavilion at the Venice Biennale 2018;
- MArch tutor Tom Coward's practice AOC has won an RIBA competition to design a community centre in Berkshire, a lot on the GLA's Architecture + Urbanism panel, and a project to redevelop the National Archives in Kew;
- BA Architecture external examiner Roz Barr's practice has won an RIBA London 2018 award;
- BA Architecture tutor Thomas Bates has been shortlisted for an Architecture Foundation competition;
- MArch external examiner Tom Holbrook's practice 5th Studio has won places on a record 5 lots on the GLA's Architecture + Urbanism panel;
- BA Architecture tutor Bruno Silvestre's Padre Cruz social housing project in Lisbon has been listed for the RIBA International Award 2018;

Additionally our Register podcasts, recorded conversations with visitors to our Department, have reached 26,000 listeners since their launch a year ago.

The work in our show demonstrates that a school does not need to get lost in esoterica or avoid the real practical issues at the heart of our discipline to produce beautiful and poetic work.
